Let's talk duty of care

The greatest responsibility of any business—and their TMC—is to bring travellers home safely. That's the heart of duty of care. Yet, up to 50% of business travellers are still flying uninsured or under-insured. That's a big gap.

If you don't know where your travellers are, what support they have, or how to act when things go wrong, it's time to rethink your risk management strategy.

Up to 50%
of business travellers are still travelling uninsured or under-insured.

Update your travel policy

Start with the basics. A smart, flexible travel policy sets expectations and keeps your teams aligned.

Here's what to include:

- What types of travel are allowed (and which aren't)
- Guidance on approved bookings, classes, and flexibility
- Emergency steps for travellers and internal teams
- Clear resources for high-risk regions, including local laws and customs

The best policies aren't long, they're usable.

Don't skimp on travel insurance

Two words: comprehensive cover. Lost baggage is annoying. A medical emergency in a remote area is far worse. Having the right insurance in place makes all the difference.

Make sure your provider offers:

- Crisis response and on-the-ground coordination
- Support for delays, natural disasters, or civil unrest
- Clear exclusions and transparent terms

If you don't understand it, ask. If it's not enough, push for more.

Turn to tech

Real-time travel tools keep you ahead of disruption. Good tech doesn't just send alerts—it empowers travellers to make decisions confidently.

Corporate Traveller's Melon platform gives travellers:

- Flight updates and delay notifications
- Destination-specific safety information
- Direct access to consultants when needed

It's a safety net with both AI and human touch.

Trust the experts

Risk management isn't DIY. Your travellers need more than notifications, they need experienced people backing them up.

A strong TMC will:

- Monitor global events and deliver proactive safety alerts around the clock
- Offer immediate, human-led assistance via emergency click-to-call
- Navigate complex rerouting, cancellations, and rebookings during disruptions
- Liaise directly with airlines, hotels, and ground transport providers to solve issues quickly

Whether it's a missed flight or an unfolding crisis, the right support makes the difference between a hiccup and a disaster.

Simplify, consolidate, and listen

Fragmented bookings = fragmented visibility.
Consolidating all your travel through one trusted source makes it easier to track travellers, enforce policy, and act quickly.

Questions to ask suppliers:

- Is there reliable transport nearby?
- Is the accommodation secure?
- Is staff on-site 24/7?

Don't leave details to chance.
Do your due diligence.

Put your people first

Travellers aren't robots.
Some are anxious. Others are seasoned road warriors. The best programmes flex to fit both.

Start with:

- Hotel perks like early check-in, complimentary breakfast, and Wi-Fi
- Giving travellers a day to unwind before or after a trip
- Creating direct feedback channels so you know what's working

The more supported travellers feel, the better they perform, and the safer they are.

Want to protect your people and strengthen your travel programme?

Let's build a plan that holds up when it counts.
